Paula Inniss
President
Ohio Full Court Press

Capable. Founded in 1995, Ohio Full Court Press is a digital print provider specializing in Typesetting, Web Development, Extranet Development, Prepress, Signs & Banners, Production, Distribution, Digital Repository, Warehouse Storage and Facilities Management services.

Focused. Inniss welcomes the entrepreneurial challenge of general management encompassing sales goals, new account solicitation, analytical support, strategic planning and alliances, education and training, market segmentation, and employee compensation and retention.

Philanthropic. With this incredible responsibility, Inniss still takes time to give back to her community. Her business savvy is distinguished by her corporate board membership involvement including Ohio Health, the Greater Columbus Chamber of Commerce, Columbus State Community College, the U. S. Bank Advisory Board, and The Gathering Discovery Ministries.

Experienced. Mrs. Inniss takes pride in her past association with the United Negro College Fund; Destiny Training Camp Advisory Board, and Franklin County Children's Services Black Family Connections Advisory Council. Her expertise includes entrepreneurial mentorship facilitation and national keynote speaking. Inniss has contributed her business expertise to post-graduate executive programs at Tuck Dartmouth University focusing on general management. She has written an eight week Business Cultivator program for emerging entrepreneurs that includes marketing, accounting, human resources, morals and values and much more. Throughout her 14-year tenure as a major account Sales Manager at Xerox, Mrs. Inniss' accomplishments were honored with the prestigious President's Award four distinguished times. This achievement prepared her for the challenge of becoming a successful digital communication solutions provider business owner.

Honored. Her leadership based upon integrity has evolved Ohio Full Court Press into a prominent and respected member of the central Ohio business community. Paula has received various awards such as the Greater Columbus Chamber of Commerce Small Business Person of the Year; Ernst and Young's Small Business of the Year Finalist; SBN Magazine's Top 100 most influential people in Columbus; Service Firm of the Year Award from Minority Enterprise Development; YWCA Women of Achievement Award; and five-year member of Business First's Fast 50 - recognizing the fastest 50 growing companies in Central Ohio.

Her primary interests include mentoring to others to reach their full potential through belief, dedication and genuine spirituality. Paula is married to Malcolm Inniss and is the mother of an adult daughter, two adult sons and a proud grandmother of two.
